Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 1, line 5, "the roughening traces" lack antecedent basis.

In claim 1, line 5, "the longitudinal direction" lacks antecedent basis.

In claim 2, it is unclear how area to be coated being roughed to the range claimed, further structurally limits the blade itself. This appears to be a process limitation.

In claim 3, it is unclear how the roughening formed by grinding further structurally limits the blade itself. This appears to be a process limitation. Also, in line 2, "the blade surface" lacks antecedent basis.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 1792

The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ooyane (JP 2000-190280).

Ooyane provides a cutter blade for a printer comprising an elongated blade surface provided with a roughened surface via alumina blasting followed by a coating of a thermosetting silicone based polymer which would provide for wear resistances of the blade. Ooyane provides for roughening of the blade at a prescribed portion but does not specify the area of the blade perpendicular to a longitudinal direction of the blade. However, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to provide roughening of an appropriate surface of the blade, most likely to be in contact with another surface in order to improve the receipt of the wear resistant coating on the blade.

With respect to claims 2 and 3, these claims are read to provide process limitations and not structural limitations to the blade such that these claims have been given no patentable weight.

Art Unit: 1792

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The following patent discloses the state of the art with respect to a wear resistant blade: Yamada et al (US 4,823,161).
